 Widely used on the ATP Tour, men's adidas tennis shoes have evolved substantially since the days of Rod Laver and Stan Smith. The brand with three stripes now offers a variety of tennis shoes for any type of player, from beginn er to pro, and anywhere in between. You can find men's adidas tennis shoes on the feet of Alexander Zverev, Dominic Thiem, Stefanos Tsitipas, and more.

Adidas continues to be a trailblazer in the world of men's tennis s hoes. Their innovative approach can help any level of player find success on the court. Currently, adidas features a couple of main categories of men s tennis s hoes. The Court line, led by the SoleCourt Boost, recently replaced the Barricad e family as the brand's premier durability line. Less expensive models within the line include the SoleMatch Bounce, CourtJam Bounce, and GameCourt. The ico nic Adizero line, led by the Ubersonic 3, is still the brand's lightweight c ategory. Other shoes in the family include the Ubersonic 2, Defiant Bounce 2, and Club 2. Sprinkled throughout these lines are a number of impressive tennis shoe technologies, such as Dyneema Yarn, Boost and Bounce Cushioning, Adituff, and Adiwear.
