Ubisoft will now control where Call of Duty and othe r Activision Blizzard games show up on cloud gaming services, with the exception of EU countries and the various cloud gaming deals Microsoft signed previously.
If you live in a country that s part of the European Economic Area (EEA) whic h includes EU countries and also Iceland, Liechtenstein, and Norway then you l l get a free license to stream via any cloud game streaming services of their c hoice all current and future Activision Blizzard PC and console games that you have purchased. If you re outside the EEA, then it s up to Ubisoft which services get c loud streaming rights for Activision Blizzard games, including licensing these b ack to Microsoft to include in Xbox Cloud Gaming. In theory, Ubisoft could deny Microsoft a license for future Activision Blizzard games, but in reality, that s extremely unlikely to happen. Microsoft will need to pay a wholesale arrangemen t fee to license Activision Blizzard games for its cloud services, though.</p
It s also legally possible for Ubisoft to offer Activision Blizzard gam es exclusively on certain cloud providers but, again, very unlikely. I say unlik ely because unlike secret deals in the games industry for exclusivity or to keep games off Xbox Game Pass, everyone knows Ubisoft is controlling the rights here , and the company would face a backlash if it attempted to deny or block games f rom certain cloud services. Cloud providers will also still be offered a free li cense to stream these games in EU markets, thanks to the European Commission rem edy. Why Ubisoft?
